

ANDREA WINKLER

Andrea has a diverse background in planning, community engagement, and project management. She is interested in the intersections between the social, political and built form of the city and how these interests are mediated and engaged with through the planning process. Andrea is inspired by projects that build upon local culture and identity to create unique and meaningful urban environments.

During the course of her studies at York University she focused on cultural planning and public space. She has carried out a number of projects and published in these areas including a mapping of cultural organizations in Regent Park and a public exhibition on housing development in the city.

Prior to earning her Masters of Environmental Studies (Planning) degree at York University, she assisted in developing a canton-wide strategy of Local Environment Action Plans in Bosnia and Hercegovina. Always eager to explore different mediums of communication, Andrea has also coordinated projects in community theatre, radio and documentary film.
